Detailed description of project						Type of services provided
The Operational programme for the Cohesion fund has listed a flight control service for Slovenia as one of the priority Slovenian projects to be implemented. The management of the monitoring control and the preparation of the feasibility study for the €52 million project was awarded to Oikos development consulting. The first stages of the project were to calculate the possible contribution of the European Cohesion fund to the flight control project while later it was planned to develop the application form with all documentation to receive funding from this financial instrument. Flight control is a full cost recovery service in all European countries by the European flight control agreement, which is why the contribution to this project was not possible and the recommendation was to finance the structure of the project with own financing structures and by bank loans. Since the project was eventually changed, a new concept for the flight control project was designed and new calculations with the feasibility study were prepared. The new feasibility and investment plan was adopted by the Government of Slovenia in 2008.						<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Project design and support to engineering companies</li> <li>• Project design and content development for the system of the flight control service of Slovenia</li> <li>• Financial and economic calculations for the project and for the new structure of the project redesigned after the decision not to finance it from Cohesion fund</li> <li>• Implementation and fund management structure for project implementation</li> </ul>
